B. & O. SAFETY BODY TELLS OF $50,000 TO BE SPENT LOCALLY

Joint Session in Y. M. C. A. Hall Attended by High Company Officials.

HUMAN CONSERVATION FIRST

Arguments and Pleas for Preventing Accidents and for Better Care of Traveling Public Urged; Pictures Show Various Railroad Phases.

That a man can do nothing greater for self, home and country than to obey all safety rules, was one assertion by Mr. French. He urged the doing properly of all things to justify the public's confidence in the railroad. Self-preservation, the first law of nature and honesty in railroading were matters for consideration, he said, continuing by declaring that the conservation of life should be of greater interest than the conservation of the natural resources in the forest, field and stream.

"Go after the man who is continually violating the rules," commanded Mr. French. "Stop him; if you can't report him. That is a part of your duty."

Division Engineer P. Patl then gave the plans of the B. & O. for big expenditures here. Other talkers were glynn by W. E. Boydland, of Cumberland; A. A. Pool, of the Connellsville shop; H. C. Johnson of Adams, D. M.; J. J. Dough, Connellsville; T. E. Miller, master mechanic, Connellsville; and William Schuster, air brake instructor, Cumberland. These talks were followed by scenes in shops and on tracks illustrating the causes of and results of accidents.

B. & O. CLAIM AGENT SAYS WORLD LIES; HITS SHYSTERS

C. W. Egan, in Cumberland Address, Tells of Experiences With Duke Claims for Damages

C. W. Egan, general claims agent of the Baltimore & Ohio railroad, in an address yesterday before the company Y. M. C. A. at Cumberland said the created problem was to have men and women tell the truth. Today men in all walks of life will lie—lawyers, doctors, business men and even ministers. Men lie because they want more power and usually they seek that power by lying to obtain profit in money, he said.

Professionals, he said, forgot the ethics of the profession, "that doth it profit a man to gainsay the whole world and lose his soul." Egan related his experiences in adjusting claims against the railroad wherein men in the professions and even ministers had neglected themselves to obtain money from the company.

He said it was a common thing for persons who had no foundation for a damage suit to manufacture one on the slightest sort of excuse and get a shyster lawyer and a shyster doctor or two to swear perjury to make a claim apparently genuine. Here he roared the shyster lawyer as the worst sort of law and the shyster doctor as next in line.

In Pennsylvania, he said, a drunken negro got aboard a passenger train and went through the cars abusing everybody and insulting women. The train crew did all they could to quiet the man and wired to Connellsville to have an officer take the man off the train. The negro resisted arrest and the officers were obliged to club him into insensibility. The negro the next day pleaded guilty and paid a fine, but, "he is still a negro," said the negro himself, "and against the railroad."

Assistant Superintendent Eaton acted as chairman of the meeting and gave "Promotion of Safety" as the keynote of the gathering. He reviewed the origin of the movement about a year ago, declaring the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad Company was the pioneer in work for safety; extended congratulations to the West Penn Railways Company for taking up the "Safety first" motto, and expressed appreciation for the work done by the Safety Committee.

Ed. G. Coon, Secretary of the Y. M. C. A. was called, tendered thanks for the use of the auditorium and gave a short talk on the railroad man in Y. M. C. A. work.

J. W. Coon, Secretary of the General Safety Committee, gave statistics of work by the railroad company for the promotion of safety. On the 6,000 miles of track he said, we are approximately 75,000 employees. No "surprise" tests are made by some railroad men, he said, he decried inserting only observations are made to see if engineers, conductors and brakemen are doing work properly.

The Baltimore & Ohio Railroad Company, Mr. Coon asserted, is expending thousands of dollars in moving poles, cutting away rocks, placing rails on bridges and guarding machinery. The employees were asked only to be more careful.

"More than 90 per cent. of the accidents and deaths on the Baltimore & Ohio railroad, in the last 12 months, was due to carelessness," said Mr. Coon. He showed that 153 employees were killed on the entire B. & O. system, last year; that 16 employees were killed on the Connellsville division, and that practically every one was due to the failure of some person to observe the rules of safety.

Mr. Coon admitted that the deaths caused by the railroad bridge above the Baltimore & Ohio tracks here, were charged to the company, but added: "When 90 per cent. of the deaths due to something that man can't change, let's be more careful." Tracing members of an rules to cut down the extremely long list of winter accidents, Mr. Coon advised: "Let rid of the habitually careless man."

John Huie of the mechanical department, said that 500 injuries to men in B. & O. shops, in September, should have been cut in half. Carelessness, he declared was the cause of the big list. He urged the placing of the bell cord on the engineer's side of the cab; the removal of desks from coaches to prevent injuries from sudden stops; the raising of hand-bars on cabooses; the placing of safety shaker levers on engine grates; and the use of guards on all shop machines.

Superintendent C. L. French, of the Connellsville division, declared that employees should look at the safety rules from a selfish standpoint and not look with suspicion upon innovations by the company for the protection of men. In illustrating the conduct of some employees, Mr. French said he saw one man violate three safety rules in less than that many minutes in the yards here.

State to Breed Frogs Again if Right Kind of Bugs are Found

Further experiments will be made by the State Department of Fisheries on the propagation of frogs in the coming year, although, up to date, it is said the work has not been a success.

The breeding of "bullies" was started a couple of years ago and although much attention was given, poor results were obtained. Many in-

PUTTING OFF THE USE OF

HERPICIDE IS SIMPLY ANOTHER WAY OF PUTTING OFF THE HAIR

The tendency to put off until tomorrow what we should do today accounts for most of the bald heads we see in the front row.

Newbro's Herpicide stops falling hair and prevents baldness. The dandruff germ is destroyed by its use and a condition of health maintained in the hair and scalp.

Nearly everyone has hair troubles of some description which Herpicide will always correct. Don't wait until it is too late.

It is conceded to be the standard hair remedy and is recommended and applied by all the best hair dressers and barbers.

SCOTTDALE INTERESTED IN SPECIAL TRAIN FOR SATURDAY

Going to McKeesport to See Billy Sunday—Rehearsal of Broadway Hit Drama.

Special to The Courier.

SCOTTDALE, Nov. 19.—Interest continues to grow in the proposition of a special train from here to McKeesport and the meeting with Billy Sunday in holding them. The special will be run over the South West branch on Saturday evening, leaving the Scottdale station at 5:35 o'clock, and will make only one stop going or returning, and that at Alvinston, according to present announcements. It looks as if it will be about 650 or 700 people in attendance and it is desired that those in charge know exactly how many are going, so that ample accommodations may be provided. The train now has been engaged with 12 coaches, and a midship fare will be $1.25 and no half fares.

WORK ON POLES

The West Penn Electric company and the P. R. Telephone company are busy making a new arrangement of their wires at the corner of Pittsburg street and Broadway, where the new pole is set a short time ago. The new lining up of the wires will reduce the network of wires over that corner.

REPAVING STREET

Thomas Pietro & Company, who have the contract for repaving Walnut and Locust streets, have begun work on repaving Locust avenue between Pittsburg and Market streets. The stretch of pavements has got in pretty bad shape, dangerous and difficult to drive over, and the council consulted to have it repaired. About 15 years ago Mr. Pietro, then employee of J. J. Crotty, told the brick on Locust was about to end of the line.

MISSTON WICK

Tuesdays and Wednesdays evenings there will be a Mission conference at the First Baptist church on the topic of "Why Christians Are." A number of the workers of the church will take part in the conference, and this will be part of the observance of Home Mission week by that church.

TRAVEL PARTY

Miss Ferguson's European party will meet on Friday afternoon at 1 o'clock at the home of Miss W. H. Chiserman, of 409 Arthur avenue. The hotel will be open on Thursday evening.

BACK FROM ARIZONA

L. M. Gross and M. J. Kennedy of Homestead and a party of Pittsburgh stockholders have returned from a tour of inspection of their property at Gold King, Ariz. The company owns 2,000 acres of mineral lands and the ore is

From your druggist get two ounces of Glycerine and half an ounce of Globe Blue Compound (Concentrated Pine). Take these two ingredients home and put them into a half pint of good whisky. Take one to two teaspoonfuls after meals and at bed time. Smaller doses are also effective. This is the best formula known to science. There are many cheap preparations of large quantity, but it does not pay to experiment with a bad medicine. Get a good quality of Globe Blue Compound (Concentrated Pine). Each half ounce bottle comes in a sealed tin screw-top case. If your druggist does not have it in stock he can get it quickly and send his name to us and we will mail him here every winter for six years and thousands of families know its value.

There was but one course for Hamlin to pursue. He had no trail to follow, only a vague suspicion that those plotters were in some way concerned in the mysterious disappearance. That far, however, he had left behind no clue to their participation. Moreover, he was seriously handicapped by ignorance of any motive. Why should they desire to gain possession of the girl? It could not be money, or the hope of ransom. What then? Was it some accident which had involved her in the tolls prepared for another? If so, were those unexpected orders for Major McDonald a part of the conspiracy, or had their receipt complicated the affair? The Sergeant was a soldier, not a detective, and could only follow a straight road in his investigation. He must circle widely until he found some trail to follow as patiently as an Indian. There would be tracks left somewhere. If he could only discover them. If this was a hasty occurrence, in any way an accident, something was sure to be left uncovered, some slip reveal the method. He would trace the movements of the father first, and then search the saloons and gambling dens for the two men. Though unaccustomed with Mrs. Dupont, he knew how to deal with such as they.

The stage coach was rolled out of hand and came to the door, revolver in hand, startled and angry.

"Who?" he repeated. "Major McDonald? How the hell should I know? Some officer went out—yes; heavy set man with a mustache. I didn't pay any attention to him; had government transportation. There were two other passengers, both men, caucuses, I reckon; none in the station at all. What's that, Jim?"

A woman's voice spoke from out the darkness behind.

"Was the soldier asking if Major McDonald went East on the coach, Sam?"

"Sure; what do you know about it?"

"Why, I was outside when they started," she explained, "and the man in uniform wasn't the Major. I know him by sight, for he's been down here a dozen times when I was at the desk. This fellow was about his size, but dark and stoop-shouldered."

"And the others?" asked Hamlin sharply.

"I didn't know either of them, only I noticed one had a black beard."

"A very large, burly fellow?"

"No, I don't think so. I didn't pay special attention to any of them, only to wonder who the officer was, 'cause I never remembered seeing him here before at Dupont, but, as I recollect, the fellow with a beard was rather undersized; had a shaggy buffalo-skin cap on."

Plainly enough the man was not Dupont, and McDonald had not departed on the stage, while some other, pretending to be his, possibly wearing his clothes to further the deceit, had taken the seat reserved in the couch. Dazed, bewildered by this unexpected discovery, the Sergeant swung back into his saddle, not knowing which way to turn.

CHAPTER XXIII.

The Dead Body.
That both McDonald and his daughter were involved in this strange puzzle was already clear. The disappearance of the one was as mysterious as that of the other. Whether the original conspirator had centered about the Major, and Miss Molly had merely been drawn into the net through accident, or whether both were destined as victims from the first, could not be determined by theory. Indeed, the Sergeant could evolve no theory, could discover no purpose in the outrage. Convinced that Dupont and his wife were the moving spirits, he yet possessed no satisfactory reason for charging them with the crime, for which there was no apparent object.

Nothing remained to be done but search the town, a blind search in the hope of uncovering some trail. That crime had been committed—either murder or abduction—was evident; the two had not dropped thus suddenly out of sight without cause. Nor did it seem possible they could have been

The three bent over the object.

"Well, what do you say? You man are both plotters."

"Cheyenne," returned Carroll promptly. "But what the hell are they doing here?"

Hamlin shook his head.

"It will require more than guessing to determine that," he said sternly. "And there is only one way to find out. That fellow was a Cheyenne all right and there were three of them and two whites in the party—see here; the prints of five horses ridden, and one animal laid. That will be the one McDonald had. They went straight up the opposite bank of the ravine. If they leave a trail like that we can ride after them full speed."

Carroll had been bending over the dead officer and now glanced up.

"There's sand just below, Sergeant," he said. "I hate why they are so darn reckless here."

"Of course; they'll hide in the dunes, and the sooner we're after them the better. Wade, you remain with the body; Carroll and I will return to the trail and report."

"The eyes of officer and soldier met."

"Do you suppose he could have told her?" the former asked in sudden suspicion.

"That would be my theory, sir. But it is useless to speculate. We have no proof, no means of forcing her to talk. The only thing for me to do is to trail those fugitives. I need another man—a scout—Wasson, if he can be spared—and rations for three days."

This Colonel hesitated an instant, and then rose, placing a hand on Hamlin's arm.

"I'll do it for Miss McDonald, but not for the money," he said slowly. "I expect orders every hour for your troop, and Wasson is detailed for special service. But damn it, I'll take the responsibility—go on, and run those devils down."

Hamlin turned to the door; then wheeled about.

"You know this man Dupont, Colonel?"

"Only by sight."

"Any idea where he used to run catie?"

"Wait a minute until I think I heard McDonald telling about him one night at the club, something. Mrs. Dupont had let slip, but I didn't pay much attention at the time. Seems to me, though, it was down the Canadian. No, I have it now—Buffalo Creek; runs into the Canadian. Know such a stream?"

"I've heard of it; in west of the North Fork somewhere."

"You think it was Dupont, then?"

were after Mac!"

"No, sir."

"Well, I do; he carried thirty thousand dollars."

"What?"

"He was acting paymaster. The money came in from Wallace last evening, and he was ordered to take it to Ripley at once."

Hamlin drew in his breath quickly in surprise.

"Who knew about that, sir?"

"No one but the Adjutant, and Major McDonald—not even the orderly."

The eyes of officer and soldier met.

"Do you suppose he could have told her?" the former asked in sudden suspicion.

"That would be my theory, sir. But it is useless to speculate. We have no proof, no means of forcing her to talk. The only thing for me to do is to trail those fugitives. I need another man—a scout—Wasson, if he can be spared—and rations for three days."

This Colonel hesitated an instant, and then rose, placing a hand on Hamlin's arm.

"I'll do it for Miss McDonald, but not for the money," he said slowly. "I expect orders every hour for your troop, and Wasson is detailed for special service. But damn it, I'll take the responsibility—go on, and run those devils down."

Hamlin turned to the door; then wheeled about.

"You know this man Dupont, Colonel?"

"Only by sight."

"Any idea where he used to run catie?"

"Wait a minute until I think I heard McDonald telling about him one night at the club, something. Mrs. Dupont had let slip, but I didn't pay much attention at the time. Seems to me, though, it was down the Canadian. No, I have it now—Buffalo Creek; runs into the Canadian. Know such a stream?"

"I've heard of it; in west of the North Fork somewhere."

"You think it was Dupont, then?"

"I haven't a doubt that he is in the affair, and that the outfit is headed for that section. I don't know, sir, where those Indians came from, or how they happened to be up here, but I believe they belong to Black Kettle's band of Cheyennes. His bunch is down below the Canadian, is it not, sir?"

"Yes."

"Dupont must be friendly with them, and this coup has been planned for some time. Last night was the chance they have been waiting for. The only mistake in their plan has been the early discovery because of Miss McDonald's disappearance. They have gone away carelessly, expecting two or three days start, and they will only have a few hours. We'll run them down, with good luck, before they cross the Canadian. You have no further instructions, sir?"

"No, nothing, Sergeant. You're an old hand, and know your business, and therefore no further instructions, sir?"

"I wish I knew some plan to get the audience to leave the house earlier than it does," said the manager of the theater. "The people linger in their seats and in the aisles for half an hour after the show is over, and the expense for lights counts up during the season."

"Why don't you," asked the experienced friend, "have a line printed on the program, reading: 'Be sure to hold your seats until after the grand finale.'"

The oyster, when it's done and said,

Should please every man and all;

Then it's right to eat it in its bed;

It never goes to rot or balt;

The lobster is the symbol of

The life in which many people roister;

No wonder goodly people love

The oyster.

The oyster rather likes on drink,

But not the sort that thins the nose;

And makes the driver gally wink;

Or fills him full of varied woes,

It quells but water, naught would move

It to a swallow that was poister.

Hence prohibitionists approve

The oyster.

The oyster never cares to roam;

It always keeps the best of hours;

In quietude and peace at home.

Its disposition never sour;

It is not strong and trouble-holster-

So praise all advocates of peace,

The oyster.

The oyster never answers back,

In gossiping or fight indulges,

When it's placed upon the rack,

It knowledge it would not divulge.

Contentedly its days would end,

Surely within its humble cloister,

I'm sure all of us would command

The oyster.

EXPRESS COMPANIES FACE CRISIS AS TO U. S. CUT IN RATES

Great Parcel Carriers Expected to Fight Federal Slash in Prices.

POSTS FEATURE IN CONFLICT

Battle Between Corporations and Government Package Transportation Promised a Victory for latter in Form of Commerce Commission.

The great express companies of the country are confronting a situation that threatens to develop into a struggle for existence and should they determine to make the fight, they will have the backing of their allies, the railroads. For half a century, or more, they have had a virtual monopoly of the small package
carriers business and the profits therefrom have been very great. With the advent of the new year, however,
the parcels post will be instituted under governmental auspices and it is certain to make inroads upon the business of the express companies which are expected to fight back, and if they do the contest will be a battle royal.

Before the parcels post legislation
by Congress, the Interstate Commerce Commission, several months ago, concluded a long and thorough investigation of the express business of the United States. Its report was a vigorous assault upon the express companies, it pronounced their capitalization excessive, service bad,
business methods indefensible, rates
altogether too high and discriminatory.

It was decided in the report that an extensive reduction in express rates
should be made, but the final order was issued to that effect, the investigation being delayed until the express companies could be given a hearing on the question. This hearing was held recently by the Commission
when attorneys for the express companies argued against the reduction in the rates, but it is not expected that these arguments will have much weight with the Commission which spent months in its careful investigation of the question.

The matter of chief interest now is whether the express companies will make a fight when the formal order is issued and carry the case to the Court of Appeals. If they adopt the program of fighting, there will be no end. The Commission is in no position of being trifled with on this subject. It is intimated, and it is determined to see the fight to the end
before giving way on its position.

When the Commission made its report suggesting the reduction of the express rates, it did not have the weapon to fight with it now has. Then there was no legislation creating the parcels post, but all matters stand at this time the Commission is in a position to make the express companies treat with eminent respect, because the parcels post law gives to the Commission an important part in determining the rates to be adopted for the big weapon of assault on the express companies.

That the express companies will content themselves with the formal protest filed against the rates at the recent hearing is the belief of the members of the Commission. They base their belief on the presumption
that the railroads will not take a hand
and interfere in behalf of the express companies. Of course, if the railroads insist, the express companies will have to make the fight, as most of the express revenue goes to the railroads for transportation.

But the Interstate Commerce Commission inclines to the belief that the express companies cannot afford to fight, as they will. If they do, it will be at stake if they refuse to agree upon the shaming of the rates that will be lowered.

In this connection the sentiment in the House of Representatives is pointed out. During the last session it was shown that the House is strongly in favor of the Lewis plan of parcels express, which would involve the Government's taking over of the express business entirely, operating it as part of the postal functions of the Post Office department and enforcing a complete Government monopoly in the express business. This, of course, would drive the express companies out of business entirely.

Consequently, it is compromised on the parcels post plan as it was written into the postal appropriation bill, but it would not require much effort, it is declared, to induce the House, at least, to pass a measure for taking over the whole express business.
That would mean a real fight for which, it is said, the express companies
at this time have no desire.

FEEL SHAKY, BILIOUS, HEADACHY, OR CONSTIPATED? TAKE CASCARETS

Sick Headaches! Always trace them to lazy liver, delayed, fermenting
food in the bowels or a sick stomach.
Poisonous, constipated matter, gases
and bile generated in the bowels, instead of being carried out of the system,
is reabsorbed into the blood.
When this poison reaches the delicate brain tissues it causes congestion and that dull, sickening headache.

Cascarets remove the cause by stimulating the liver, making the bile and constipation poison move on and out of the bowels. The effect is immediate.

UNIONTOWN AGAIN TRIMMED BY COKERS' FIVE—31 TO 20

Scars' Braves Go Down to Defeat on Home Floor; Busy Trying to Explain.

Connellsville gave Uniontown its third defeat in exhibition basketball,
trimming Scar's "Braves" 31 to 20,
last night, in Uniontown. Fans of the Fayette county host found difficulty in explaining the defeat, but the reason was the lead gained by the "Cokers."
Manager M. A. Coffey's players were never headed, and 100 Uniontown
rooters were silent most of the night.

Uniontown failed to make a field goal in the opening round. Scar's managed to get 10 fouls in the first half, while the "Cokers" registered 10 points. Uniontown's first basket from the field came after the first five minutes of play in the second half.
Boggs' towing it. Scar's team was then the losers from the floor, and throwing 13 out of 18 foul. Dark had a feature shot from the center of the floor. Steele arrived and appeared in the "Color" lineup, throwing one goal from field. Kerfoot, a Uniontown boy, succeeded Ryan in the second half.

The score:

UNIONTOWN HERE TONIGHT

Game Called on Home Floor; League
Meet Tomorrow Night.

The Uniontown team of the Central Basketball League will meet the Conn-nellsville team in an exhibition game on the West Side door, tonight at 15 o'clock. The "Cokers" have feated Scar's aggregation three times in a row and the Uniontown fans have been howling: "What! We'll get you yet!" Indications point to a hot battle. A big turnout of rooters both from Connellsville and Uniontown is expected, as the latter team is anxious to take at least one game from Manager Coffey's five.

President Joseph Parsons announced
last night, that a basketball meeting will be held in Pittsburgh tomorrow night, when preparations will be made to open the Central race next week.
The assured manager of the Connellsville, Uniontown and Homestead races
that the Central League will be given new life and that the teams may be for the present. The fact is that made to get Johnstown back. A decision will be given by Johnstown di-

A CHANCE TO GET A SAFETY OUTFIT

Then There's No Further Annoyance When You Need a Quick Shave.

The Courier is pleased to announce an arrangement with the manufacturers whereby readers will be supplied with the very latest self-shaving kit for six coupons and merely the cost of expense items as set forth in today's announcement, printed elsewhere
in this paper.

The enormous expense of popularizing
a new feature in self-shaving
could not be met by the manufacturers
through the usual channels, and a combination of leading newspapers
throughout the country offered a plan of publicity that seemed well calculated to the purpose. In this section which has been selected for this great promotion plan.

The complete outfit consists of one safety razor called the "Very Sharp"
six fine steel blades, one genuine horse hide leather strap, one handy strapper, and a box of strap dressing which is applied to the strap and acts like magic in keeping it in a condition that always assures perfect sharpened blades.

Who is the man who does not need this outfit? It matters not how many other kinds of razors one has,
none in the only always-ready, quick shaving self-shaving outfit complete of itself. All you need to do is to supply the leather—and we supply the entire outfit, and "YOU'll never need to buy another blade."

Read the announcement printed elsewhere in today's paper. See the coupon. Come in and examine the outfit.
You'll agree that this is an opportunity that you cannot afford to lose.

Thanksgiving

Preparing for a real Thanksgiving means more than setting the table.

True, it means less of a certain sort of work than it did in our forefathers' time—and perhaps this is a good reason for thankful hours.

Those ancient and honorable Puritan fathers—the Winslows and Mathers—what were their preparations for the day of Thanksgiving?

Around them danger, untraveled woods, stern New England winter savagery—the hardships of pioneer life.

We, too, can't conceive such things.

And those wonderful Pilgrim mothers? Peril and hardship were just as close to them.

Yet their spirit fathered our Thanksgiving.

We have all that they had not in material comforts.

Enjoying these let us see that we share what our fathers had without them—the Thankful Heart.

WRIGHT METZLER & COMPANY.

Snowy New Linens

THE USUAL THANKSGIVING EXHIBIT AND SALE BEGINS WEDNESDAY, THIS WEEK, IN THE DRY GOODS STORE.

The table linens, napkins, sets, lunch cloths—some of it loomed in Ireland; some in Scotland; and some from other parts of the earth—represents a clear and safe economy to the house-wife or hotel keeper whether their choice be at a lower-than-usual price, as some of it is, or sold at the price we've marked ed.

We take great pride in selecting a linen stock that contains everything anyone could desire.

We also like to show some very particular housewives certain heavy double damasks set out of their ocean cases.

They are snow white, they will retain their color and look with proper laundering; and the several beautiful designs are confined to Wright-Metzler. Briefly, they are the peer of anything we've seen.

Linen prices are not as low as in seasons past, it took skillful and expert buying on our part to assemble this, the finest stock heretofore.

This Thanksgiving Display will be tempting—the items and the prices—and we hope you'll come to look or purchase.

DECORATIVE LINENS—FOR DINING ROOM AND ELSEWHERE

Will also be on display. We promise some rare beauties, indeed.
